

Testing a turbo or exhaust driven supercharger for automobiles he designed and built, Ray Besasie, Milwaukee automobile mechanic and inventor, says that General Motors, Inc., and the Le Roi Co. report the supercharger increases compression to six and one-half pounds above atmospheric pressure, while limiting the back pressure from the exhaust to two and one-half pounds.